Come, Holy Spirit, fill the hearts of the faithful and kindle in us the fire of your love. Send forth your Spirit and we shall be created. And you shall renew the face of the earth.

O, God, who by the light of the Holy Spirit did instruct the hearts of the faithful, grant that by the same Holy Spirit we may be truly wise and ever enjoy your consolations through Christ our Lord.
Amen

At the time of WTE, I was working a fast-paced job that I enjoyed but was way too much for one person and I often felt like I was drowning. There was a job opportunity I was considering at the time that was outside of anything I had done before, but for some reason, I felt drawn to it. I know that was God because the job paid less and carried much more responsibility.

As an introvert and a bit of a control-freak, I was scared to go on this journey. I like to know what to expect, especially if it involves people I do not know. I went anyway because I knew God would be there with me and my church family was telling me it was an experience I did not want to miss. My husband went on the walk before me and I could see some change in him too.

As you can probably guess, I was completely overwhelmed the first day and was grateful for the night of silence. It was truly a blessing to me, even though I know it was hard for many people. I took the time to read scripture for courage and to write in my prayer journal. I asked God to help me to be open and to go with the flow and He came through (of course).

I heard amazing testimonies and enjoyed the activities with my group. I relaxed a little as I got to know the people around me a little better. I came closer to God and understood things in a new way. Little did I know the hardest part for me was still to come. The day of closing ceremony, I burst out in tears when I was told I would have to stand up in front of past members and my walk members to speak. That is one of my absolute biggest fears and the bigger the crowd, the more anxiety I have. The ladies at my table all gathered around me and comforted me. When the time came, I was crying, shaking and pale, but God was there and He got me through it.

I felt confirmation during this time that God was leading me to this new job. When I began, I saw how He was preparing me to work with less control and not always knowing what to expect because those lessons were truly put to the test in my new position. I loved it, but soon felt led away, back to my previous employer. My time at that new job was a blessing and I see so many ways in which God used it, not just for me but for others.

I was sent on WTE at the exact right time in my life and everything that has happened afterward is a direct result of what God spoke to me there. None of it seemed to make sense or go together at the time it was happening, but I can look back now and see how God was working it out. I have my current position and house as well as a deeper level of relationship with God because of the one weekend in my life. I will leave you with this verse which God has shown me to be true- Romans 8:28, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose." Listen to what He is telling you my friends and remember His lessons. He knows what He is doing!

DeColores!
